

ELEMENT DOG TRAINING

Setting Expectations

- Working through a behavior problem with your dog can be a wonderfully rewarding experience
- Dogs come in a variety of sizes, each have their own unique background, and each learn in their own unique way
- It's our job to embrace the unique quirks of your dog. It's part of the family and brings its own unique and endearing personality to your daily life

Behavior Expectations:

- Whatever the background, creating a loving, nurturing, and respectful environment will allow each dog to learn at a pace that suits his or her individual needs
- Assume each new dog you adopt or foster hasn't had any previous training. Set them up for success!
 - Every behavior they already know can be celebrated, reinforced, and used to build even stronger behaviors
- Remember to be realistic in your expectations. Not every dog will be capable of becoming a service dog. Like with all family sometimes we change our lives to accommodate our loved ones need.
